It will be based mainly on integration work using state-of-the-art components. The network will integrate multi-media industries, content providers and service centre operators. Journal (review,magazine etc.) or Web Site	EVA Conference Proceedings http://www.eva-berlin.de
Number - Date	EVA 2002 (November 2002)
Abstract (max 1000 characters)	The development of new tools for cultural institutions is one of the main goals of the European Project REGNET (Cultural Heritage in REGIONal NETworks). By using new technologies (e. g. using XML to structure and store cultural heritage data) and recent developments in the field of standardisation a new generation of information systems should be set up. The technical development takes documentation standards in the different domains (UNIMARC, CIDOC, ISAD(G), ...) as well as Dublin Core Metadata for cross domain searches into account. Thereby cultural institutions should be enabled to manage their data (object information, data about museum shop items) online and publish them directly in the Internet. Where electronic catalogues already exist processes for the conversion in XML and integration into the REGNET portal will be defined. The following article describes the results and the available tools for data generation, conversion and search.

Journal (review,magazine etc.) or Web Site	IST-MWCS 2003 Summit
Number - Date	Submission ID: 1066
Abstract (max 1000 characters)	The current technological trend of mobile communications puts on view the progressive growth of the available radio band for data transfer, and an enrichment of capacities of wireless terminal (localization systems, video camera, etc.). Moreover, on the side of the network infrastructures, it is consolidated the convergence in the direction of the switching based on IP, which, de facto, opens to the mobile terminals the potentials of the Internet access. [...] On the other hand, concerning the data services, it is not clear yet which applications will be the symbols of this technological progress. [...] Therefore, while developing Internet applications for the wireless world, it is imperative to address the needs of mobile users before the requirements of the mobile devices. This paper will analyse main wireless services, and will deepen a particular category characterized from being tied to services the user can access also from fixed terminals. [...] A platform to develop such services was proposed within the REGNET project and will be exposed in brief.

Title	Data structures for topic map generation
Journal (review,magazine etc.) or Web Site	Proceedings of the Sofia meetings
Number - Date	24-26-June 2002
Abstract (max 1000 characters)	The aim of this paper is to describe a methodology for a modular structuring of all necessary items required to generate a Topic Map (TM) as a layer on top of a set of cultural heritage information resources. This modular approach allows a tailor made construction of different flavours of Topic Maps (XTM-compliant but also ready to meet some vendors' TM-toolkit specifics/extensions). The combination of the key elements of the TM form the ontology represented by the TM. At the same time this method permits to store highly fragmented information (e.g. topic per topic) into databases that can be used for associative searching purposes

Title	REGNET: a collaborative framework for the cultural heritage domain.
Abstract (max 1000 characters)	REGNET is a European IST program financed project. It defines a European wide, collaborative framework in the field of cultural heritage (CH). REGNET addresses new ways of cooperation between different stakeholders (Cultural Organisations, Industries, Administrations, etc.) as well as the "re-engineering" of traditional business processes in the light of globalisation and worldwide markets. REGNET sets up a functional network of cultural service centres through Europe which provide IT-services dedicated to cultural heritage organisations. A technical and legal framework based on the ebXML specification, the REGNET system, is developed in order to realise these objectives. Processes dealing with Museum, Archive, Library and Art Gallery domains are represented as well as corresponding data formats, all registered in a public ebXML registry. CH's organisation subscription to REGNET is based on this framework. REGNET offers the following services: data entry, distributed search and retrieval, online selling of CH digital goods and services, artists' production promotion, procurement and collaborative publication. Knowledge about REGNET shared objects is managed according to the XML Topic Map approach.

Title	REGNET: an ebXML market place for the cultural heritage domain.

Abstract (max 1000 characters)	The aim of this presentation is to describe the REGNET system with a special focus on the ebXML based framework. REGNET is a European IST programme financed project. It define a European wide, collaborative framework in the field of cultural heritage (CH). REGNET address new ways of cooperation between different stakeholders (Cultural Organisations, Industries, Administrations, etc.) as well as the “re-engineering” of traditional business processes in the light of globalisation and world wide markets. REGNET sets up a functional network of cultural service centres through Europe which provide IT-services dedicated to cultural heritage organisations. CH’s organisation subscription to Regnet is based on this framework. REGNET offers following services: data entry, distributed search and retrieval, online selling of CH digital goods and services, artist’s production promotion, procurement and collaborative publication. Regnet dynamic network organisation is based on the ebXML model. Regnet business process, scenarios, and business profiles will be available through an industry ebXML registry. Communication between the different stakeholders will be based on ebXML messaging. Knowledge about REGNET shared objects is manage according to XML Topic Map (XTM) approach. This technology allows knowledge based navigation in large, distributed and interconnected corpora. Its allows to build collaborative functionalities such as virtual exhibitions or training dedicated to a specific theme. The REGNET open technical architecture is based on the Web Services approach and uses SOAP protocol for communication between components. The components of a Regnet node are described below. The REGNET Portal provides access for classical Internet navigators as well as wireless devices. It consists of three components, enabling access to following system functions: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Data Generation. This subsystem enables the generation of meta data.</li> <li>• Search and Retrieval. The Search Subsystems allows distribution of searches to different repositories and the merging of different result sets delivered by repository subsystems. It allows navigation through XTM.</li> <li>• E-Business. Besides the pure access to digital collections of cultural and scientific content, REGNET supports business processes based on digital surrogates. This can be a simple buying function (B2C) of digital surrogates or real objects or even an order to produce a personalized CD-ROM based on raw data coming and pre-selected from different repositories.</li> </ul> The REGNET-Cultural Heritage Data Management system facilitates the management of data related to cultural heritage. The connected repositories contain electronic documents as well as surrogates of ‘real objects’. The REGNET e-Business Data Management system facilitates the management of data related to products and services. This node is connected to the procurement and delivery of goods and services provided by cultural organisations. The REGNET-Ontology System is a core element of the system and guarantees unification with respect to terminologies, metadata and business rules. Ontology includes knowledge about repositories, document types, Topic Maps, user profiles, product catalogues, terminologies, external systems.
